Re: Michele M. Walker v. State of New Hampshire, Administrative Offices of the Court
PLAINTIFF'S MEDICAL EXPERT DISCLOSURE

Dear Attorney Dempsey:

Enclosed please find a copy of Eric G. Mart, Ph.D.'s written report dated May 7, 2012, along with his Curriculum Vitae and list of cases. Generally, Dr. Mart is expected to testify in accordance with his report, as well as to comment upon Ms. Walker's emotional condition, expected treatment, prognosis, ability to work, any permanent impairment, normal life expectancy, etc.

Dr. Mart's opinion is based upon his education, training, experience, records, and relevant literature. In addition, we reserve the right to have Dr. Mart review additional medical records and material as they become available, as well as to review, relay and/or comment upon the reports and testimony of the experts retained by any other party.

By this disclosure, we are not waiving our right to object to material or testimony produced by other parties/experts as the facts, circumstances, and/or Rules of Evidence permit. We reserve the right to supplement this expert disclosure as the need arises and based upon the disclosures of the other parties, up to and including the time of trial.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter. Should there be any questions, please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

RE: Michelle M Walker (deceased) v. State of NH - Administrative Office of the Courts

Dear Attorney Johnson:

I am writing to give you my preliminary report in the above-referenced case. I think it is important to point out that my report at this point is preliminary because I anticipate that further information will become available as this case goes on. I anticipate that many of the facts alleged in your Complaint dated August 30, 2011, are or will be in dispute. No psychological analysis or review of medical records can determine whether a particular event did or did not occur. Further, determining the credibility and veracity of allegations is the province of the trier of fact. As a consequence, it will only be possible to give limited opinions regarding the materials I have reviewed at this point. I also reserve the right to modify my opinions as further information becomes available.

In completing this report I reviewed the following documents:

1. Complaint - Estate of Michelle M. Walker, Charles E. Walker, Administrator v. State of New Hampshire - Administrative Office of the Courts and State of New Hampshire - NH Second Circuit, Littleton District Division - Administrative Office of the Courts (8/30/11)
2. Dartmouth Hitchcock Medical Center Records (8/21/09-8/22/09)
3. Northeast Kingdom Human Services Records (9/2/09-6/11/10)
4. Littleton Internal Medicine Records (1/21/08-10/19/09)

Your Complaint explains the allegations involving Ms. Walker in great detail, so I will not review each of the allegations in detail in this document. The complaint notes that Ms. Walker was employed as clerk of the Littleton District Court beginning on or about 11/9/96. It is alleged that, beginning in 2007, Ms. Walker was subjected to sexual harassment by a coworker. Instances of this alleged sexual harassment include requests by the coworker to participate in homosexual activity, repeated sexual comments in the workplace, sexually offensive jokes, and intrusive questions about the plaintiff's sexual activities. It is also alleged that one of the other employees at Ms. Walker's place of employment engaged in angry, hostile and aggressive behavior toward Ms. Walker during the summer of 2009.

According to the complaint, Ms. Walker made attempts to resolve this through normal administrative channels, but this was not helpful. Ms. Walker alleged that when an investigation was undertaken the focus appeared to be on her, and not on the employee who was causing the problems. According to the complaint, Ms. Walker went on medical leave and was subsequently informed that she could not return to work until a fitness for duty evaluation was completed.

I reviewed the available medical records from this case as part of my initial assessment. Records from the Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center indicate that Ms. Walker was admitted for psychiatric hospitalization due to what was variously described as an episode of acute psychosis or possibly delirium caused by a reaction to ciprofloxacin. It was reported that she was brought in by her family for evaluation because she had appeared to be suffering from paranoia, confusion and impaired sleep for the previous 4 to 5 days. Her initial encounter at the facility occurred on 8/21/09. In a document entitled Psychiatric Teaching Physician Involvement, dated 8/21/09, Dr. Elizabeth LaRusso notes that Ms. Walker had been acutely agitated on admission and required intramuscular Haldol, Ativan and four-point restraints. Dr. LaRusso reports that Ms. Walker's husband indicated that she had a long history of low-grade paranoia dating back decades. Mr. Walker stated that over the past year his wife had become increasingly concerned over a coworker that she perceived as acting against her, and that she had been documenting perceived slights with the goal of eventual litigation. He noted that over the past month her paranoia had become more pronounced and that she had spent a great deal of time working on the documentation.

A document entitled Final D/C summary notes by William Horn, M.D., notes that Ms. Walker had no prior psychiatric history. Information from Ms. Walker's husband's sister indicated that Ms. Walker had been "under a lot of stress" at work, where she felt people were trying to antagonize her. She had also become fearful that her coworkers were trying to hurt her by taking her daughter. Ms. Walker reported that she did not experience auditory hallucinations during the acute phase of her illness but thought that she was seeing "cars in the bushes" on her way home from work the previous day. Further documentation indicates that Ms. Walker's acute symptoms had resolved the next day and she was discharged.

Ms. Walker was subsequently seen for follow-up psychiatric care by Carey Brodzinski, APRN, at Northeast Kingdom Human Services. Ms. Brodzinski reports that Ms. Walker told her that at her place of work, an employee who had been hired more than a year ago had been giving her a "hard time." Ms. Walker told Ms. Brodzinski that she had been accused of making up stories about the harassment. A subsequent letter from Ms. Brodzinski, dated 11/16/09, states that Ms. Walker was being treated for symptoms of employment-induced posttraumatic stress disorder. She noted that Ms. Walker had been placed on medication for anxiety and had responded well. Ms. Walker was reported to be in weekly counseling. Subsequent counseling notes indicate that at various times Ms. Walker reported feelings of depression, poor self-esteem, anhedonia and low energy levels. She was assessed for suicidality in a number of the sessions. Ms. Walker spoke about thoughts of suicide at various times, but she denied having a suicide plan and told her therapist that she would not hurt herself because of the effect it would have on family members.

A note by Carey Brodzinski dated 5/7/10 details a conversation with Mr. Walker. Ms. Brodzinski reports that the patient shot herself on 5/3/10. She had not left a suicide note and there was no apparent trigger for her actions. Mr. Walker noted that his wife seemed fine on the previous day. On her husband's advice she had canceled a scheduled deposition. Mr. Walker told Ms. Brodzinski that his wife had been compliant with her medication regimen up to that point.

As I stated at the beginning of this report, there is at this point little information available regarding the factual basis of Ms. Walker's reports of harassment and lack of response by supervisors at her place of work. As this information becomes available, I will incorporate it into a subsequent report. Based on the available information, a number of hypotheses are suggested in this case.

Assuming that some or all of the problematic events in the workplace which are cited in the Complaint did in fact occur, it is clear that Ms. Walker had some degree of pre-existing psychopathology, as evidenced by statements from her husband and daughter regarding long-standing problems with low-level paranoia, although the nature and severity of this pre-existing condition cannot be ascertained from the currently available documentation. In this scenario, Ms. Walker would have been predisposed to poor adjustment to these stressors. It should be noted that while stress may have contributed to the symptoms that led to Ms. Walker's psychiatric hospitalization in August 2009, my reading of the medical notes and reports from this period suggests that the main cause of her symptoms was most likely a medically-related delirium. My reasons for coming to this conclusion relate to the symptoms she exhibited in the course of her illness. Ms. Walker's symptoms came on quickly and resolved rapidly. Additionally, she reports visual hallucinations in the time leading up to her hospitalization; visual hallucinations are rare in cases of functional psychosis and are more often seen in cases of delirium and in toxic states. Consequently, while Ms. Walker's perceptions of her work environment may have been to some extent colored by her predisposition to suspiciousness, I do not believe that her mental state in the previous year reflected a formal thought disorder, nor does it appear that her suicide was the result of psychosis.

Clearly, if it can be shown that Ms. Walker was not in fact harassed at work, some other explanation for her perceptions of the events that occurred there would have to be explored. However, based on the available records, I do not believe it is likely that her narrative of her experience in the workplace would have been solely the product of disordered thinking, since she was never hospitalized for acute psychosis previously and gave no signs of seriously disordered thinking after her hospitalization. As a consequence, it is my opinion that if the harassment detailed in your complaint actually occurred, it is likely that Ms. Walker's hostile workplace environment was either the cause of or a contributing factor to her anxiety, depression and subsequent suicide.

Please feel free to contact me if you require further information or have questions about this report.

Sincerely,

Eric Mart, Ph.D.
